

Nicola Mahaffy was called to the Bar in British Columbia, Canada, in 1996, and is currently working as a prosecutor for the British Columbia Ministry of Justice in Vancouver. In 1998 she was admitted to the Rolls of Solicitors in the United Kingdom. Nicola has a longstanding interest in learning about different criminal justice systems. In 1998 she worked for a criminal defence firm in London, UK, in 2001 and 2002 she worked for the United Nations Mission in Kosovo, and in 2005 and 2006 she spent some time working in the DPP's office in Dublin, Ireland. Nicola's interest in learning about different criminal justice systems led her in 2008 to found, together with Nicholas Cowdery QC, the IAP's Prosecutor's Exchange, a program that she is still running today.