

Biography:

Rich Goldberg is Senior Counsel for Complex Litigation for the U.S. Department of Justice, Consumer Protection Branch. Since 1999, he has brought and supervised criminal and civil cases relating to fraudulent telemarketing schemes, internet deception, mass-mailing fraud, unauthorized account charges, drug and dietary supplement fraud, hazardous consumer products, and other offenses. He helps lead the Department's newly-established Transnational Elder Fraud Strike Force and serves as a co-chair of the International Mass-Marketing Fraud Working Group, which consists of government authorities from across the globe dedicated to halting large-scale international fraud schemes.