

Biography:

Attorney General Lawrence Wasden is serving his fifth term in office as the top lawyer representing the state of Idaho.

During his 16 years in office, Mr. Wasden has devoted his time and energy to helping Idahoans of all ages and backgrounds. Through his office's Consumer Protection Division, A.G. Wasden has taken many steps over the years to protect Idahoans in the marketplace. One of his most recent efforts includes teaming with other state AGs to urge the federal government to begin leveling the playing field for consumers who face hundreds of robocalls each year.

He's also become a recognized leader nationally in the effort to protect children from online sexual predators. The attorney general is a staunch defender of open government and tackling public corruption, as well.

Mr. Wasden has also been active in important issues beyond Idaho's borders. A.G. Wasden served for more than a decade on the Board of Directors of the American Legacy Foundation, a nonprofit focused on educating youth and adults on the dangers of smoking.

Attorney General Wasden has earned degrees from the University of Idaho and BYU.

Please welcome Idaho's Attorney General, Lawrence Wasden.
